LawTalk

The official magazine of the Law Society

LawTalk is the official quarterly magazine of the New Zealand Law Society, regulator of the New Zealand legal profession and the principal membership organisation for the vast majority of lawyers.

Published since 1974, LawTalk is the oldest-established legal news magazine in New Zealand. Over the past 40 years it has kept lawyers up to date with changes that affect how they practise, Law Society news and activities, information on the profession and people in the law, the courts, legal education, and developments in the law.

Other recipients include members of the judiciary, New Zealand Law Society Associate Members, legal executives, Members of Parliament, media, academics, law students and others involved in the legal services industry.

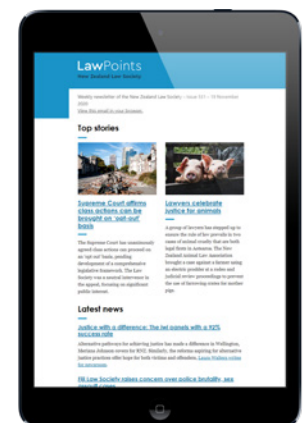

LawPoints

Weekly email newsletter

LawPoints is a weekly email roundup of news and information relevant to the legal profession in New Zealand. Legal news, law reform, case law, news and information about members of the legal profession, and professional development are covered in short paragraphs with external links to the full story. LawPoints is emailed every Thursday evening to all lawyers who hold a current New Zealand practising certificate.

NZLS Weekly is a weekly email which provides a round up of news and information relevant to any non-lawyer who is interested in the New Zealand legal system - including judges, law students, and the media.

The Property Lawyer

The quarterly magazine of the Property Law Section of the New Zealand Law Society

The Property Law Section of the New Zealand Law Society represents and supports its 1600 specialist property law practitioner members. The Section recognises the special nature of property law practice and The Property Lawyer is the Section's main publication and biggest membership benefit.

Each quarterly issue contains a mix of regular features and guest articles which inform members of developments, discuss changes and give practical advice. The Property Lawyer is a well-respected, targeted and technical publication sent directly to almost 1600 property lawyers and stakeholders in New Zealand.

The Family Advocate

The quarterly magazine of the Family Law Section of the New Zealand Law Society

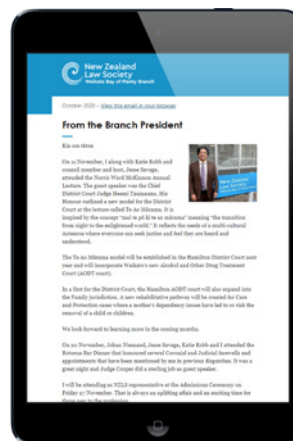

The Family Law Section of the New Zealand Law Society was established in December 1997 to recognise the special interests of family lawyers and the growing importance of family law in New Zealand. The FLS represents and supports its 1000 members who identify as specialist family law practitioners, judges, legal academics, legal executives and government employees from all over New Zealand.

The Family Advocate is published quarterly and has been produced continuously since 1998. It aims to inform members of developments in the law, promote debate on family law issues and update members on the work of the Family Law Section. The Family Advocate is a well-respected publication sent directly to every Family Law Section member and is available on subscription within New Zealand and overseas. Legal Jobs

All digital legal job ads are placed on the website at the time of publication. Ads stay on the website for four weeks following publication by default, but can come offline earlier if you have a specific closing date. Legal job advertisements in email newsletters are in the form of a link to the advertisement on the Law Society website, www.lawsociety.org.nz, and thus there is no word limit. A small logo or graphic can be included with the text of the advertisement.

Legal job ads placed in Branch Newsletters are not placed onto the Law Society website.

Will notices

New Zealand has no official register of wills. To assist lawyers and private individuals in locating wills that may be held by lawyers, the Law Society publishes will notices in LawPoints email newsletter. Notices placed in LawPoints will reach lawyers across the country. If you know the area where a will is likely to have been made, a notice can be placed in local Law Society branch newsletters.

To the right is the common wording of will notices, though not all information will be known for all deceased individuals.

Artwork requirements

It is the responsibility of the advertiser to ensure that camera-ready artwork meet these requirements.

Print Advertisements

- Correct Size
The image must be of the exact dimensions.
- PDF X-1a format PDF
PDF X-1a is a subset of the PDF standard which is designed specifically for supply of advertising artwork. All colours are converted to CMYK, and transparency flattened. Recent versions of Adobe Illustrator and InDesign contain presets for exporting to PDF X-1a.
- No overprint
- No crop marks
- No spot colours
All spot colours must be converted to process
- Full page display ads must have 3mm bleed on all edges
Setting the bleed to 3mm allows the artwork to be placed into the layout at the correct size automatically. Bleed is only required for FP display ads, and is not required in artwork for other ad sizes which do not bleed off the page edge.
- All images should be at least 300ppi
- All logos should be a high quality format suitable for print
The best case scenario is a vector format – most likely an EPS file. However high resolution (large) image files are acceptable as well. JPEG, PNG and TIFF formats are all acceptable. Logos taken directly from websites are not usually usable for print.
- Black text should be 1-colour black only (100K)
- Colour conversions should assume an output intent of Fogra 39 (sheetfed coated)

Digital Advertisements

- Correct Size
The image must be of the exact dimensions.
- RGB format, JPEG or PNG created using 'Save for Web'
The ideal file format will depend on the nature of the artwork – JPEG being better suited for photographic images, and PNG being better suited for text and graphics.
- Link provided
A URL should be provided alongside the artwork for the banner ad to link to. This can be a website URL, or an email address for a 'mailto:' link.

Make-up advertisements

- All text to be included should be provided in MS Word document format
Plain text is also fine, but PDFs are not. It needs to be something we can easily copy and paste from.
- All logos must be supplied in a high quality format suitable for print
The best case scenario is a vector format – most likely an EPS file. However high resolution (large) image files are acceptable as well. JPEG, PNG and TIFF formats are all acceptable. Logos taken directly from websites are not usually usable for print.
- If colour is to be used, specify your company/organisation colours
Any suggestions or ideas are welcome. Often an example of other material produced by your company/organisation can be helpful, such as business cards or other stationery.
