General information

Regulation of the Legal Profession in New Zealand

The legal profession in New Zealand is regulated by the LCA. To provide legal services in New Zealand and be able to call yourself a lawyer, you must hold a current practising certificate as a barrister or as a barrister and solicitor.

The Law Society issues practising certificates. Once an application for a practising certificate is approved the lawyer's name and certain other details are recorded on the public Register of Lawyers.

Register of Lawyers

The Register of Lawyers is kept in electronic form and is published on the Law Society's website. The Lawyers and Conveyancers Act (Lawyers: Practice Rules) Regulations 2008 require the Register to contain the following information about every lawyer:

1. full name
2. work address and telephone number for work purposes
3. the kind of practising certificate currently held, and when it was issued
4. when and where the lawyer was admitted
5. if the lawyer is in practice on their own account, whether the lawyer practises as a partner in a partnership; as a shareholder of an incorporated law firm; as a director of an incorporated law firm;

as an employee; or as a sole practitioner

6. whether the lawyer is an in-house lawyer (as defined in the Rules of Conduct and Client Care for Lawyers 2008)
7. whether the lawyer is providing or intends to provide real estate services (as defined in the Rules of Conduct and Client Care for Lawyers 2008)
8. whether the lawyer's practising certificate is currently suspended and, if so, when the suspension took effect and when (if known) it will be lifted
9. if the lawyer agrees to make available on the Register: the lawyer's work email address, the lawyer's home address, the lawyer's home or other contact number, the lawyer's fax number (if any) and any other information the Law Society wishes to place on the Register.

A lawyer may request the Law Society to restrict public access to the lawyer's work address and/or phone number for work purposes on the Register of Lawyers in order to protect the lawyer's privacy or personal safety. Guidance on making a request can be found here.

Certified copies

Please ensure these are marked 'certified as a true copy of the original which has been sighted' and they are legibly signed and dated – preferably with a name stamp appended. Each page of the document must be certified.

Privacy and information handling policy

The personal information collected and held by the Law Society will be used to process and assess your application, and for purposes connected with the Law Society's regulatory or representative functions, or both.

Further information about how the Law Society handles information including personal information is set out in the Law Society's Information Handling Policy, which can be viewed at lawsociety.org.nz/privacy. This Policy also contains information about your right to access and seek correction of your personal information. Please read this Policy before completing this form. If you have any queries about the Information Handling Policy, please email our Privacy Officer at privacy@lawsociety.org.nz

Form guidelines

If you have any questions in respect of this form or your application, please call our Registry team on 0800 22 3030.

Please answer all questions unless a question does not apply to you (in which case state 'not applicable' or 'N/A' without leaving a blank). An incomplete application will not be considered until all the required information and documentation has been received. If additional space is needed to answer a question, please use a separate sheet and attach to this form.

If you are the director of any companies, please refer to chapter 5 of the Lawyers and Conveyancers Act (Lawyers: Conduct and Client Care) Rules 2008 regarding independence, and in particular rule 5.5 to ensure that your business interests or professional activities would not, or could not reasonably be expected to compromise the discharge of your professional obligations as a lawyer.

Please list below all the companies for which you are a director and provide a brief outline of the work the company undertakes and what your role as director entails.

10 References

If 24 months or more has elapsed since your admission to the High Court of New Zealand or your last New Zealand practising certificate expired (whichever is more recent) you must provide at least two references with your application:

- an employer reference
- a general character reference.

Each reference must be completed by a different person and at least one of these people must have known you for five years or more.

Your employer reference should be provided by your direct supervisor or manager. If you have worked for your current employer for less than 12 months, you must provide a reference from your most recent previous employer as well as from your current employer. If 12 months or more has elapsed since you were last employed, you must provide two general character references, instead of an employer and a general character reference.

Your general character reference should come from a person who:

- knows you well;
- can speak about your character and personal qualities.

Your general character referee could be:

- a lawyer (holding a current practising certificate); or
- a person who must be registered for their occupation; for example, teachers, doctors, nurses, and other health professionals, social workers, legal executives, real estate agents and engineers; or
- a kaumatua; or

- a member of New Zealand Police; or
- a serving member of the armed forces; or
- a minister of religion.

If you are or have been practising as a lawyer in another country, your general character reference (or one of them, if applicable) must come from a person associated in legal practice with you in that jurisdiction.

If you are unable to obtain a reference from one of the above people, it will not adversely affect your application. You should contact your local Law Society branch to discuss alternatives.

Certain people cannot give a general character reference for you:

- Members of your family (including in-laws);
- The spouse or partner of someone who has provided a reference.

Each reference must be completed on the prescribed form provided by the Law Society. Only reference forms completed by the referee within the past three months will be considered.

The Law Society will accept a PDF version of the original reference, if the reference is supplied by:

- a lawyer (holding a current practising certificate) and it is emailed directly to the Law Society from the lawyer, or
- a non-lawyer and it is emailed directly to the Law Society from a verifiable email address. For example, a government or recognised non-government organisation, such as [department].govt.nz, or [publiccompany].co.nz or [charity].org.nz.
